Israelis welcome the Jewish New Year with Apples, Honey and Pomegranates
Happy New Year to our Jewish Friends

Fall Holiday 2019 Newsletter

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the Fall 2019 Friends of the Israel Heart Society Newsletter. Inside find a wealth of knowledge including medical breakthroughs, upcoming conferences, professional openings at Israeli hospitals, and treatment successes.

Professor Tal Dvir of Tel Aviv University holds the world's first 3D printed heart replete with cells, blood vessels, ventricles and chambers. Check the new Friends Newsletter to learn how Israeli researchers are printing 3D hearts, leading the way to new life-saving treatments.

One upcoming conference is the ICI Meeting

December 8-10, 2019 in Tel Aviv, where a special award will be presented to the winner of the 2019 ICI Innovation Award Competition, one of the world's most significant and prestigious awards for Medical Interventions Startups. Sponsored by the De Haan Trust, it features a $100,000 first prize. There is still time to apply. See the newsletter for details.

The Fall newsletter also features pictures and reports from recent meetings including the 2019 IHS Conference and the annual Friends of the Israel Heart Society reception at ACC.19 where we proudly honored two friends who have been vital to IHS and FIHS. Jack Strohm has been producing spectacular newsletters for ten years now and continues his record with the current issue. We are grateful for Jack's insights and commitment. This past year, Batia Ziv retired from the Israel Heart Society after many years of exemplary service as Administrative Manager. The newsletter contains a special section honoring Batia with pictures of the presentation made to her by the past Presidents and Secretaries General of the Israel Heart Society. Batia has been an invaluable partner not only for the IHS but also for the FIHS. We will miss your faithful service and look forward to working with Karen Davidson to whom Batia has handed the reins.
